

One day I came across an open call by Vuk Cosic for the White Page Gallery Network.

He invited all internet users to do the following:

1. go to your favourite file, it doesn't have to be art
2. extract one pixel that best represents your appreciation for that file, you don't have to tell me the source
3. send that pixel to me somehow, you will find the way
4. tell me how you want to be signed and if you want your name to be a link, add the URL
5. I will publish it on the cover of my important home page

Hi Vuk,

Here is one pixel for your WPG, yours is a great call!

Best,
Zsolt Mesterhazy

hey Zsolt!
Thank you for the pixl, will put it in the long queue (this turned a bit popular).
I like your pixel actually.
Would you like me to link somewhere?

White Page Gallery

I believe the internet should be free and that internet artists should be the ones to help.

Therefore I invite all internet users to do the following:

1. go to your favourite file, it doesn't have to be art
2. extract one pixel that best represents your appreciation for that file, you don't have to tell me the source
3. send that pixel to me somehow, you will find the way
4. tell me how you want to be signed and if you want your name to be a link, add the URL
5. I will publish it on the cover of my important home page

Important rule

Please restrain yourself from submitting any pixels promoting violence. I don't like violence. This is a very strict rule.

Vuk, your internet friend

This is a part of the White Page Gallery Network, a global dominance initiative

A capital 'A' is turned upside down for the math symbol '∀' of 'forall'. As it stands, on a pixel, the dictum in broken English follows:

"Patience, no jumping, no lines." Say goodbye to the guest on a mission to a banquet hall! As I say goodbye to you, by another protocol!
